Overcrossing debate heats up

PLEASANTON — Some local citizens may oppose the Stoneridge overcrossing at a local public hearing June 7 because they think its construction will slow down the eventual construction of the Las Positas overcrossing, citizen Wally Mayer, Jr. said Friday.

Mayer based his thoughts on a letter from a Cal Trans official to Assemblyman Floyd Mori, but City Manager Bill Edgar, who read the letter, thinks that Mayer's assumptions are mistaken.

The Cal Trans official, Phillip Raine, told Mori that the state is obligated to build the Las Positas overcrossing "when justified."

The letter acknowledged that Pleasanton will spend $2.7 million to construct the Stoneridge overcrossing and since it is the only project of the two which can be financed, Las Positas, "while still desirable, is not of high priority."

Mayer said this means that since the city "prefers" to build the Stoneridge crossing first, it has shoved the Las Positas crossing down the priority list. This was the reason the state opposed the Las Positas crossing when Mori tried to get a bill through the Assembly Transportation committee allocating money for the crossing, said Mayer.

Not true, said Edgar. The letter from Raine to Mori also said that "construction of Las Positas is a desirable project," said Edgar.

The true situation can be summed up like this, said Edgar. "Suppose you have a list of 100 projects and say Las Positas is 95 on the list where there is enough state money to fund only the first 20. If we build the Stoneridge overcrossing, Las Positas may change to 100, but for all practical purposes, it doesn't make any difference," he said.

"What the state is saying is they are going ahead with Stoneridge because it is fundable (by the city, through an agreement with the Stoneridge Regional Center developer). If we floated a local bond issue to construct the Las Positas overcrossing, the state would cooperate by doing the design work for it. Any decision on a local bond for Las Positas would be up to the council," said Edgar.

Burke Bachtold, an official in Cal Trans's San Francisco office, agreed with Edgar's assessment. "Yes, we have an agreement to fund Las Positas, but we have hundreds of such agreements around the state and no ability to fund them. Futting an overcrossing at Stoneridge will have no effect, practically speaking, on Las Positas."

He acknowledged Edgar's statement that the state would pick up the necessary design costs if the city decided to fund the Las Positas overcrossing.

New PUD means 'strong control'

Development laws may face overhaul

PLEASANTON — The city council's action placing six properties around the city into study districts foreshadows a proposed overhauling of the Planned Unit Development ordinance.

City Attorney Ken Scheidig told The Times Friday that while some may have referred to the study properties in question as potential "downzoning" cases, that definitely isn't true.

The properties were placed in the study districts not to cut densities, but because they were not in conformance to zoning in the general plan. In addition, the city is preparing its growth management plan as well as revising the PUD ordinance and both actions could have an effect on the properties, said Scheidig.

Thp properties, scattered around town from Hopyard Road to Foothill Road to the Mission Park Hill, can be held in the study district for 120 days without public hearings. After that, the planning commission and city council must conduct public hearings.

In this case, the hearings will be with an eye to rezoning them to bring them in conformity with the general plan.

Thp city's proposed revision of the PUD ordinance will affect the future zonings of these properties. The proposed revision has been exchanged once between planning department and city attorney's office and more drafts are in the offing, said Scheidig.

The city's current PUD ordinance desperately needs revision, said Scheidig. The zoning process and the subdivision process are separate entities right now and that has led to confusion.

The new PUD would straighten out the process and give the city a much better picture of what a development will look like before the developer gets his or her zoning.

The controversy over the recreational vehicle storage yard in Stoneridge which has been in the news the past few months is a good example of why PUD needs revision, said Scheidig.

The developer went through subdivision and zoning processes separately and showed different approved uses for the same parcel. That won't be possible when the city adopts its new PUD ordinance, he said.

As far as "downzoning" or "upzoning" is concerned, the only safe thing that can be said about the revision is that the city will have strong controls over population of any new development proposal.

During the density controversies of the late 1960s and early 1970s many residents invoked the average residential densities of 4.7 units per acre which was guaranteed in the city's standard subdivision ordinances. When the current PUD ordinance came in, a developer could raise densities 20 to 50 percent in some cases under PUD, something which led the more bitter critics to call PUD "Pushed Up Densities."

The new PUD would not specify any density.

The real key, said Scheidig, is that the city will have much more information about the impact of the development on the neighborhood and the environment.

The new ordinance will ask the developer to provide a count of the total bedrooms in the tract and a calculation of the population density of the development.

Restaurant parking worries merchants

PLEASANTON — Main Street merchants worried that a proposed restaurant in their vicinity will create a traffic problem should rest assured.

The Times reported Friday the old home and former school district headquarters next to the police station may become a restaurant. Rumors persist that three entrepeneurs will open a Mexican restaurant there, although if the fire codes won't permit a grill there, it could be a lunchroom with sandwiches only.

Accountant Wally Mayer, Jr., who has an office in a refurbished old home on St. Mary Street, told The Times Friday that inclusion of another restaurant in the vicinity of the municipal parking lot near Main Street would crowd the area.

He pointed out that a new restaurant, La Rochelle, will open in July on St. Mary Street and use much of the parking in the lot which was created by an assessment district. Another restaurant would jam up the parking situation, Mayer feels.

Brian Swift of the planning department said Friday that parking has already been checked by the city. The property in question was one of the first participants in the parking assessment district and paid its fair share in the parking assessment district, said Swift.

It was thought at the time the property would have a commercial use, but even a small restaurant on the main floor of the old house would not exceed the number of spaces reserved in the parking district for the property, said Swift.

A check by the The Times around noon Friday revealed 30 cars parked in the municipal lot and a total of 78 spaces, eight of them covered with construction material behind the La Rochelle restaurant.

Jerry Bindi, owner of La Rochelle, also expressed concern about the lot's ability to hold future parking.

"I welcome the competition, it's great, no problem at all. But the parking will be a problem," said Bindi. "We'll use so many spaces in the lot and other merchants will use the lot, so what's left for the other restaurant?" La Rochelle will have seating capacity for 125 persons, said Bindi.

If a Mexican restaurant goes into the old house on Main Street, it raises the prospect of four Mexican restaurants in the valley, a big contrast to the current absence of any at all.

Former city planning director Ricardo Castro plans a restaurant in a new building to be built by Chris Beratlis a few blocks down Main Street.

A group of Livermore families plans to open a Mexican restaurant the first week in June at Third and K Streets. Members of 10 families which will own the restaurant have been busy adapting the building from an old Burger Chef restaurant.

Dublin, too, will have a Mexican restaurant this fall when El Charro of Lafayette opens a restaurant on a three acre site next to Liberty House on Regional Street.

District to name principal

The Amador Valley Joint High School District will present the new principal at Foothill High School Tuesday afternoon.

The person to be nominated for district board action that night will replace Don Landers, who previously asked for another assignment in the district. He has been at Foothill two years and previously was principal at Dublin High.

Amador commenced a statewide search more than a month ago after Landers announced his wish to leave the principalship for a less demanding administrative position in the district. Landers explained that he has been a high school principal for more than two decades, including several key assignments at new schools in this state and Oregon.

Amador district trustees, who meet Tuesday night at the District Educational Center in Pleasanton, face a lengthy agenda including recognition of negotiating units, a public hearing on the California School Employes Assoc. contract proposal, consideration of endorsing Measure B on the June 8 ballot (Pleasanton school district's revenue increase measure), implementation of Assembly Bill 1821 (regional adult and vovational educational councils), a Regional Occupational Program report and calling for bids on athletic and physical education supplies and equipment.

Trustees must also review an agreement for placement of a mobile home on the Amador Valley High School campus. At question is the site.

The home will house a security watchman (a present district employe) as a means of cutting down the continuing vandalism at the school on Santa Rita Road.

Board members convene at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Zone 7 Board

New trails for Don Miller to blaze

This is the first in a series of articles on eight candidates for the Zone 7, Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, Board of Directors.

After eight years on the Livermore City Council, Don Miller has launched his first bid for regional office. The very mention of his name seems to stir controversy in the valley, and his decision to run for the zone board has prompted no less than three candidates to try to make sure Miller doesn't land one of three vacant seats up for election June 8.

What makes Miller run?

"I'm in this race to get enough votes to change the composition and direction of the board," the 48 - year - old Lawrence Livermore Laboratory chemist said.

Miller opposes the current Zone 7 board's efforts to get into the sewer business.

He believes valley residents were misled about the cost and quality of water Zone 7 would deliver after passage of Project II bonds.

He thinks the board has arrogantly set itself against other valley agencies and attempted to usurp their local control.

"The zone's attempt to go into the sewer business goes against the wishes of local agenices," Miller said. He admits the zone has the authority to sewer, but he believes there is no legal reason why the zone should exercise that authority.

Water management, he explained, has been effectively parcelled out between the zone and the municipalities. The zone oversees flood control, water, and protection of the underground watershed.

The municipalities have responsibility for sewage treatment and effluent disposal.

"The idea that one agency should have overall control is ridiculous. It's unnecessary to have overlapping jurisdictions on sewer," Miller declared. "The only interaction between the two should come if the effluent is spoiling the underground water supply."

Miller interprets the zone's maneuvers to assert its sewer power as a thinly-veiled attempt to provide sewer services to Geldermann's Las Positas New Town, a community of 40,000 people to be located north of Livermore city limits.

"Geldertown is a development that is opposed or conditionally opposed by all valley agencies and virtually all of us ordinary citizens," Miller said. "The Geldertown development would be a disaster for present valley residents. It would use up the better water destined for Dublin and Pleasanton, crowd Livermore schools, raise taxes and increase smog."

Miller maintains the zone board misled valley voters into believing that their water would be better and rates would not go up after completion of the zone's new water treatment facility.

Last December, the zone raised water prices 20 per cent.

"They told us that the plant would be paid for by connection fees. But the water rates now pay the total cost of the Project II bonds, contrary to their promise," Miller said.

More money is being collected than is needed to pay off the bonds, Miller charged. The excess funds are stockpiled for further expansion.

"Stockpiling is wrong in principle because it is not for the benefit of water users. I have to ask to whose benefit they are stockpiling," Miller said.

"The present population is paying for expansion that can be used for others, such as Geldertown, at our expense and against the wishes of the valley agencies," he said.

Water quality, Miller noted, has not improved, especially in the west end of the valley. He said it would be a "good idea to have the cities get off their independent water quotas, and I would encourage them in so far as they are willing."

But Miller said he doubted the zone ever intended to stop pumping water from its own wells and deliver exclusively treated water.

Urbanization should be handled by the municipalities, Miller believes, noting the zone has no land use power and shouldn't attempt to interfere with the cities' decisions.

He thinks cities should have the power to veto development if that growth is within the cities' spheres of influence. "Nobody has a vested right to zoning. Property rights are not the same as property expectations," Miller said.

But he admits there are times that localities must submit to regional goals. "I try to look toward long-range goals because the short-range view can be disasterous," Miller explained. "Sometimes the long range view of a regional agency is better than a municipality's. For example, with air pollution, no one municipality can make the decision over all."

And Miller thinks the goal of every public agency should be better air quality. "To deliberately take steps to make people sick is wrong in principle," he declared.

Miller believes there is considerable valley support for his point of view. "My career has been based on my point of view and the direction I think we ought to go. If they like my position, they'll vote for me," Miller said.

"I try to follow through on what I believe, and I don't lie to people," Miller said. "You may disagree, but you'll always know where I stand."

Pleasanton man beaten after traffic incident

PLEASANTON — A 42-year-old Pleasanton man was beaten by five men after a traffic incident in which one of the attackers claimed he was cut off by the victim's car.

Lowell Dean Sheirbon of Minni Street sustained a black eye, cuts and sore ribs after the attack, police reported.

Sheirbon told police he turned southbound from Neal Street onto Main shortly after midnight Friday morning. He suddenly felt his car lurch, and looked back to see a blue Volkswagon bump his car, back off, and bump it again.

Sheirbon pulled into a parking lot on Main and got out. The VW driver walked up to him and said, "Don't you ever cut me off again." Sheirbon apologized but said he saw no other car near him when the man suddenly hit him in the face. Four other men then appeared and beat Sheirbon to the ground and kicked him in the ribs. The suspects then fled.

A man matching the suspect's description and driving a blue Volkswagon was detained two hours later during a disturbance in the Hopyard Road area. He was released pending further investigation of the incident.

Pleasanton youths arrested sleeping in stolen car

PLEASANTON — Two Amador High students listed as runaways were arrested while they slept in a stolen car parked on Dolores Court early Friday.

Police noticed the car because it was parked facing the wrong way. A radio check of the car showed it was registered to Jose Moreno of Livermore, and that it had been listed as stolen from in front of his Falcon Way home the day before.

The youths, aged 14 and 15 years, were booked on suspicion of felony car theft.

Insight to burglary

No perfect crime preventatives

Last of a five-part series

Despite man's best efforts, nothing can be made entirely burglar - proof. If a skilled, professional team of thieves decided to knock over Fort Knox, a scheme could probably be devised to do just that.

So what to do if you're hit?

First of all, don't touch anything! Once a crime scene has been touched or interferred with in any way, police consider it "contaminated" and usually won't bother to dust for fingerprints, because any prints found can be challenged in court.

Call the police. When they arrive, give them as much information as you can about what items were disturbed, possible suspects (such as baby - sitter's boyfriends), and any suspicious neighborhood activity (such as strange cars or prowlers) seen in the last few days.

Give police a list, as complete as possible, as to what items were stolen, their description, and provide serial numbers or other identifiable marks of each object.

Notify your insurance company as soon as possible. Under a typical homeowners's policy, you are insured against loss by burglary up to 50 per cent of the policy amount. Therefore, if your home is insured for $50,000, contents are insured up to $25,000 whether loss is from burglary or other causes.

Most insurance companies will reimburse the amount of replacement cost, minus depreciation. Thus, if your four-year-old television cost $500 new, has lost $250 through depreciation, and a new set would cost $600, you would receive $350.

Valuables, such as furs, expensive jewelry, quality camera equipment, coin or stamp collections, should be protected by a separate floater on your present policy.

If you are unsure of your present coverage, haven't increased it to meet spiraling inflation, or simply don't have insurance, contact an insurance company and find out what coverage would best suit you now. Then compare his price with other reputable companies and pick the package best for you.

What if, after discovering a burglary in your home, you discover the burglar? Don't confront him. Most burglars are only interested in escaping and will flee if allowed to, but a junkie afraid of experiencing withdrawal in prison will do anything to escape.

If you see the burglar, try to remember his features, then close and lock a door between you and he. If you awake to a burglar, feign sleep and wait until he's gone to phone police.

If you come home and have reason to believe the burglary is still in progress, stay out of the house. Call police from a neighbor's phone and let them go in first.

After the burglary, determine what measures must be taken to insure it doesn't happen again. Replace broken glass, check doorlocks, leave more lights and a radio on in the future.

Ask the police what security steps should be taken. All valley law enforcement agencies will furnish home security checks free upon request.

Participate in community crime prevention programs, such as Operation ID or neighborhood discussions on the problem. Become suspicious of strange vehicles or individuals in the area, and take down license plate numbers of cars that don't belong in your neighbor's driveway.

If you witness a crime or have other information valuable to police, GET INVOLVED! Your name can remain anonymous on police reports, and you would expect the same from your neighbors.

An excellent display of recommended locks and alarm systems is currently on display at the Pleasanton police station. A similar exhibit will be shown beginning tomorrow at the SunValley Mall in Concord, and a third display will be featured at Diablo Valley College on May 15.

Tomorrow begins National Police Week. Give your local cop a break and help make his job easier by checking your home for security. The benefits will be enormous.

VALLEY FIRST COMMITTEE

Does ZONE 7 Have Anything To Do With Harlan Gelderman's Proposed "New Town"?

You bet your life it does!

Livermore leadership lost local control over the area when the Alameda County Board of Supervisors decided that Livermore was avoiding the issue. We cannot let these same men run ZONE 7 or we will again lost control.

ZONE 7 is the greatest opportunity we will ever have for each community in the valley to plan intelligently for its own economic future.

However, if Zone 7 uses its power to block reasonable progress and business growth, you can be sure that we will lose out to some larger Bay Area agency.

Skill Center opens this week

The Skills Center run by Associated Community Action Program (ACAP) will open shop in Pleasanton beginning Tuesday.

Skill Bank counselors Laurie Grossman, Maria Sicalbo and Celia Pitcher will staff the office at 287 Rose Ave. from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

The center formerly was located in the Latin American Service Organization center, 161 south South M St., Livermore, but has been moved to Pleasanton to serve the west valley for the next few months. It will continue to serve Livermore residents, too.

Plans are for the center to remain open at the Pleasanton location for the next few months while its services are advertised to west valley residents. The staff may move back to the LASO building when that is accomplished.

The skills counselors are looking for clients who need jobs. They interview persons who come to the center and try to match their skills to available jobs.

The counselors also can route people into manpower training programs, though currently all slots in the programs are filled.

Counselors show people how to prepare for interviews and teach them how to write resumes. All three counselors are bi - lingual, speaking both Spanish and English.

Park district opening Black Diamond mines

Officially closed for two years while hazardous coal and sand mine tunnels and shafts were sealed, the East Bay Regional Park District's Black Diamond Mines Regional Preserve opens today near Antioch.

Although you won't be able to explore the mines themselves for another year — after safety teams have made sure they're fit for public wanderings — the spot is noted for its wild scenic beauty.

A picnic area with 11 tables and eight barbecues has been established on the old coal mining townsite of Somersville and ancient trees such as locusts and ailanthus (Tree of Heaven) which the Welsh miners planted a century or so ago to shade their homes, will shelter modern - day picnickers.

EBRPD resources analyst John Waters said a 5,000 - gallon tank will provide water for the picnic area by the weekend of May 15. In keeping with the park's early beginnings, a windmill pump housing will serve as the base for a drinking fountain.

To carry out the mining theme, coal mine tailings have been used to construct a 75 - car parking lot with a 30 - car overflow area. If the need arises, the lot can be expanded by 80 more stalls.

The parking areas, Waters said, will be outlined with old mine timbers and other material salvaged from shafts and tunnels.

Waters warned fire hazard is high in the big park.

He added that the newly acquired western end of the park just south of the old Nortonville townsite will remain closed for another year while mine safety work is in progress.

To reach Black Diamond from the Valley, take Highway 680 north to route 1 eastbound. Follow 1 through Pittsburg and Antioch to the Somersville turnoff.

Vets take part in Hospital Week

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Veterans Administration Hospital will celebrate National Hospital Week beginning May 9. The nation's 7,000 hospitals will join in to celebrate "Healthy Birthday, America!" and emphasize ways to stay healthy.

"While the Livermore VA Hospital is dedicated to caring for the ill, we want the community to know that our interest in their well being extends beyond their treatment in this institution," James Fleenor, VA Hospital Administrator, said. "We feel an obligation to educate people about steps they can take which will make valuable contributions to their own good health."

Free blood pressure checks will begin Wednesday and Thursday from 12 noon to 8 p.m.

National Hospital Week is an annual observance sponsored by the American Hospital Association and its members. It is designed to give people an opportunity to learn more about the hospitals in their communities.

THE POSTAL MESS!

Who's to blame?

U.S. POSTAGE 13¢

Punch the bureaucrats in Washington...

RIGHT WHERE IT COUNTS!

The machinery in the huge bulk mail centers, not on personnel, is tearing up your packages.

It is Management policy that holds first class mail for machine processing until 7 p.m. even though it's consolidated and ready to go at 10 in the morning.

It is Management that wants to close second and third class post offices.

It is Management that talks of cutting home deliveries to three a week.

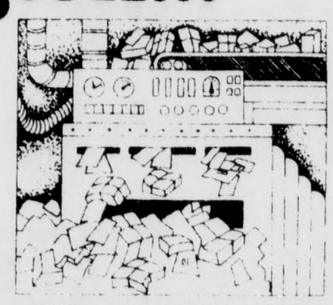
It is Management that has already cut business delivery to one a day in major cities.

It is Management that wants to cut mail box collections.

And it is current Management — those wonderful people who brought you the 13¢ stamp — that will send it higher yet.

(And we haven't said a thing about the endless internal productivity surveys that shuffle people like a poker deck, and make a shambles of efficiency, pride and morale by threateing to uproot postal workers and their families and send them to new assignments a hundred miles from home.)

These are just some of the high - powered "solutions" from the high - level managers brought in by Big Business at Big Salaries to run a "business" in which their previous experience has consisted of buying a roll of stamps once a month.



The fact is, of course, that the U.S. Postal Service can never operate at a profit and can't break even—anymore than the Pentagon can operate at a profit, or the State Department can break even. It's a government service for all the people—and the oldest of government services, predating even the federal government itself!

It's time to expose the great fantasy that the Postal Service can somehow achieve self-sufficiency in an era of double-digit inflation, falling mail volume, soaring rates and Management-by-panic.

It's time for a return to the concept of serving the American public on a public service basis.

Don't punch your postal employee...

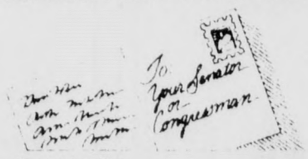
IF YOUR LETTERS ARE LATE!

If your mail is late, or your parcel is mangled, who's the first one you blame? The postal worker, right? WRONG.

- The blame lies squarely on Management which has tried to run a public service like a private business— and failed.
- Now the blame is spreading like a stain to the Administration which, through proposed repeal of the government's monopoly on first class mail, would compound the damage by giving private interests the cream of the postal business and let the devil take the hindmost.
- And the hindmost would be the unprofitable service for smaller cities, towns, villages, hamlets and the millions of Americans who live there.
- Both Postal Management and the Administration are ignoring the mandate of law that the Postal Service shall provide prompt, reliable and efficient service to patrons in all areas and all communities— and that "that no small office shall be closed solely for operating at a deficit."
- But the "managers" who run the postal system from their cushy offices in Washington, forgot these basic commitments in their haste to buy billion dollar experiments in untested mechanization that have reduced the service to a shambles.

Punch 'em with a postcard...

TO YOUR SENATORS AND CONGRESSMEN!



It's not too late.

You can still accomplish a miracle with a postcard... even if it does cost nine cents.

The American people carry clout on Capitol Hill in consequence of their very numbers. And what they—and we—all of us need now is a realistic increase in the existing public service subsidy for the U.S. Postal Service.

An increase to 10% of the postal operating budget over the next three years will do the job that needs to be done to keep the U.S. Postal Service serving all the people with efficiency and dispatch.

Such an increase is provided in Senate Bill 2844 sponsored by Senator Gale McGee, Chairman of the Senate Post Office & Civil Service Committee.

The McGee Bill not only gives breathing space to the Postal Service in its hour of need, it also provides for a moratorium on further service cut-backs while setting up a long-term study of what policies are required to get the Postal Service back into the business of service.

Send a postcard to YOUR Senators (and your Congressmen, too) urging immediate action on Senate Bill 2844—the McGee Bill.

Don't let Postal Management and the Administration abandon the Postal Service to leave it twisting slowly, slowly in the wind...

Thank you and good-by, Mrs. Rockwell!

Joyce Rockwell, chairman of the Dublin - San Ramon Children's Emergency Council for the past five years, moved to Colorado this week, leaving behind her a gaping vacancy that will take very big shoes to fill.

Her last thought before leaving because of a transfer by her husband, who works for I.B.M., was her regret at leaving a community of people who "care" about each other. This was high praise from a lady who personally oversaw the annual compiling of Christmas baskets which last year numbered almost 50 — who year - round looked to the almost daily requests of the needy. It was she who saw the completion of a permanent structure in which to store food supplies and a 24-hour emergency phone service for those in need.

All this Joyce Rockwell succeeded in doing while caring (quite adequately) for her three children, Kristen, 12, Troy, 10 and Ryan, 6, belonging to their school's parent's club, and participating actively in projects at the Valley United Methodist — as social concerns chairman and a member of the choir. She also managed to retain her dual membership in the junior and senior women's clubs of Dublin - San Ramon.

Her good friend, Carol Lopez, who will now take over the chairmanship of the Children's Emergency Council, feels as if she has lost more than a friend.

The Rev. Jim Griffes, pastor of John Knox Presbyterian, who supplies the building to house the council, says of Joyce, "She never refused a request to help anyone who was ever in need. She always came through She went out of her way to help — to the point of having transient people housed in her own home for weeks, clothing them and supplying them with money. Besides being responsive, loving and unselfish, Joyce was a very good leader, influencing those about her to do good."

Joyce will be sorely missed by all those to whom she ever came in contact with, and they wish to somehow say "Thank you." But Joyce was never the type to whom you could say "Thank you." As one of her friends puts it — "If she borrowed your car in the morning, you dinner would be cooked and waiting for you that evening.

On Mar. 7, 1778, the Continental frigate Randolph, under Commodore Nicholas Biddle, engaged the British warship Yarmouth off Barbados, in the West Indies. Biddle valiantly fought the Yarmouth which carried 64 guns compared to the Randolph's 32. Biddle inflicted severe damage "but in this moment of glory . . . she (the Randolph) unfortunately blew up." No one knows what caused the explosion that killed all but four of the 315 aboard in the greatest single naval disaster until 1941, The World Almanac notes.

lifestyle

John Poynton, a young Australian in Pleasanton as part of a farm youth exchange, wants to play down the image of the Australian with boomerang in hand. But he brought one along, just in case, which he shows to his hostess, Mrs. Art Tenbrink.

Australian lifestyle

Kangaroos are only half the story

By JEAN McKENNA

"Don't make too much of boomerangs, kangaroos or aborigines. I'm here to show that we're actually very much like you people."

The young man from halfway around the world, in Pleasanton for two weeks as part of an international farm youth exchange, talked about the lifestyle in his native Australian countryside. The towns are smaller, the farms a lot bigger in Australia, but the plight of its farmers and the optimism of its youth are very much the same as in California.

John, a member of the Victorian Young Farmers (Victoria is an Australian state), lives on a farm in Ensay located in the Tambo River Valley. The town consists of only 150 people, but his farm boasts 1100 acres, an average size for Australian farms.

Victoria is the southernmost state on the Australian mainland, in the vicinity of Melbourne. The Tambo River Valley lies in the foothills south of the Great Dividing Range, and supports sheep and beef-raising. With the advent of the modern superphosphates, says John, the native kangaroo grass has been supplanted with protein-rich alfalfas and clovers making the area more productive.

With the help of modern farm technology the Australian farmers walk an economic tightrope. Australian sheep, beef and wool is sold on a world market where they do not always bring the farmer a fair return for his labor. The solution is higher production.

"Prices can be so low, that the farms have to get bigger and bigger to be productive, so there's no future for young people on the farm," John explains with a shake of his head. "It's a pity really, because it breaks up the family. Eighty percent of the young women leave for the city to find jobs."

Yet the farmers are eternally optimistic, and stubbornly independent. The father of a family may earn extra income to keep the farm running by working the oil rigs along the coast one week out of three. Or the mother of a family may go to work in the city, bringing the children along for better educational opportunities and leaving the father to work the farm himself.

The inevitable dearth of marriageable young women for the young men who choose to farm is solved by the organization of young farmers, dubbed "the marriage bureau."

"We'll travel 100 to 150 miles each Friday night to go to the ball (dance) during the ball season," he admits. Bairnsdale, the nearest sizeable town, has a population of 10,000.

The valley in which John lives, however, offers a variety of outdoor activities to compensate for the lack of social activities. It's only 50 miles to the sea, or the "snowfields" (ski slopes), and the bush country nearby attracts hunters and hikers.

About the kangaroos ... yes, there are kangaroos in the bush country. In fact, the larger kangaroos are considered rather dangerous, and hikers always carry a gun as a precaution. A gun will usually frighten kangaroos away, but if one should meet an "Old Man" kangaroo there may be trouble, John reports.

John is the guest of Art and Joan Tenbrink of Pleasanton, who have been busy showing him the Bay Area. Art himself spent two years in Brazil as part of an exchange program similar to John's.

"I find American young people to be more mobile than Australians, and very friendly," John comments. "You know, they're a lot more interested in Australia than I thought they would be." Actually, their interest may be due in part to John's winning sense of humor and charming accent.

John, in turn, as been impressed by the quality of California wines, the TransAmerica Pyramid and Hyatt - Regency Hotel in San Francisco.

He will spend 10 weeks on a farm in Moscow, Idaho, and another 10 weeks in West Virginia. In spite of his deference, John is very well-informed and takes his task of studying American farm technology seriously. He believes that the current trend will be reversed, and farming worldwide will become more profitable.

In the meantime, he has made a special request to see Disneyland while in California. It seems the reputation of that fantasy playland has reached halfway around the world.

Exchange's new name reflects broad appeal

The Amador - Livermore Exchange Club assumed its new name May 1. Formerly known as the San Ramon - Amador Valley Exchange Club, the organization recently voted to change its name to more accurately reflect the geographical area which the club serves.

The club's motto, "Unity for Service," indicates the cohesiveness felt by the members, regardless of the valley in which they reside or work, according to a recent club news release.

The local chapter of the National Exchange Club provides service to the valley community in many ways. The recent Search for Talent contests at Dublin and Livermore were sponsored by the Exchange. The Pierce Family Fund is another club project, and at Christmas the Exchange conducts an annual toy drive.

The club constructed a monument dedicated to the historic De Anza emcampment on Tesla Road in Livermore as a Bicentennial project, and also erected the Freedom Shrine at the Chabot College Valley Campus.

Membership in the Amador - Livermore Valley Exchange Club has grown to 43. The all-male membership convenes Thursdays at the Hungry Hunter Restaurant in Pleasanton and welcomes guests sponsored by an Exchangite. Meetings are highlighted by presentations by guest speakers on topics of current interest.

Men interested in the club may contact Bill Foster at 828-7111.

TOPS leadership is Darlene Bruno

TOPS Club, In., No. 917 of Pleasanton recently conducted installation of officers at which retiring leader Gloria Foster handed responsibility over to a new slate headed by Darlene Bruno.

The meeting was also an occasion to honor members losing the most weight during 1975. Best Loser was Sue Turek, with division awards going to Karen Martinetti and Diane Coleman. Special honors were given Jere Eich for losing 35 pounds.

Mary Jo Sullivan presided over a candlelight ceremony for the graduates who reached their weit goal. The club netted a total weight loss of 183½ pounds in 1975.

TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) convenes every Thursday morning at Franklin Savings and Loan Association, Main St., Pleasanton.

DHPA

Election of officers will occupy members of the Dublin Historical Preservation Association when they assemble Wednesday, May 12 at the Nielsen School Library in Dublin.

The DHPA is dedicated to the task of preserving and restoring the 119 - year - old Murray School, the Jeremiah Fallon home and other historical edifices in the area.

The meeting convenes at 7:45 p.m.

Valley Women study diet

Dieting will be the topic of Barbara Coder when she addresses the May 11 meeting of the Valley Women's Club at the Livermore Recreation Center.

A business meeting at 9:30 a.m. precedes the program open to all valley women.

Playschool faciilities are available for children aged two months through six years for all programs. Reservations for the playschool must be made with Mitze Kashiwamura at 447-6962 before 2 p.m. Monday prior to the meeting.

For information contact Karen Taylor at 443-7385 or Carol Thorsness at 443-4487.

The many faces of motherhood:

In the kitchen or at the kiln: Mom, we love ya!

Jonathan Wax munches a cookie from a jar created by his mother, potter Jan Wax, who confides: "I couldn't be a potter if my husband, Dan, weren't such a good mother to Jonathan."

Valley mothers come in every shape and size — from the Hey, look at her, she's my Mom type to the kind you like to cuddle up to.

Nowadays, they come in unexpected settings, too: like atop a telephone pole repairing the wires, or in the middle of a road median trimming the grass.

It's hard to define "motherly" in 1976. Sometimes, Mom can still be spied pulling out a golden, fragrant roast from the oven. Other times she's making a golden (yes, and fragrant) roast of herself on the beach in Italian sunglasses and a bikini while the kids are off doing their thing.

But, on the day when all the nation is saluting mothers, The Times feels no Mom, no matter how young or old or unconventional, should be overlooked. So we offer these tips for identifying mothers:

A mom is the one who shows up at work in the morninq with a telltale smudge of chunky style peanut butter on her doubleknit jacket.

She's the one who conscientiously loads up the shopping cart with fresh vegetables and wholesome cheeses — but tucks in a sixpack of Twinkies so as not to be a wet blanket.

Moms are the only ones in the world who can concentrate while driving an old station wagon loaded with six squealing kids, three skateboards, one mongrel pup and three empty soda bottles clanking gently together on the floor.

You can tell a mother by the way she buys one of everything from kids who come to the door — Girl Scout cookies, raffle tickets, subscriptions. She knows what kids go through trying to raise money for their various worthy causes.

And sometimes you can catch her smiling gently when she takes out her lipstick and discovers it's listing to one side with mash marks at the top.

"My little girl is growing up," she may murmur, she thinks to herself.

Want to know how old her kids are? Just ask her, "Who is Steve Austin?"

If she doesn't know he's Six Million Dollar Man, either the kids are preschoolers or her memory is around the bend.

Those urgent telephone calls at work, around 3 o'clock in the afternoon, are another tipoff to mothers of school kids.

A mother will try to keep up with Presidential primary results. But they can also tell you what Snoopy did today.

There's a 20 - year - old Livermore mother who works as a waitress and turns down after - work dates in order to be with her baby daughter.

And there's a white - haired lady who lives with her retired son and daughter - in - law in Pleasanton and enriches their home with her art work, their lives with her humorous wisdom.

There's a Dublin mother raising two teen - agers, working at an office job and finding time to write some sensitive poetry in the tired quiet of late evening.

The list of special mothers could go on forever. Because every Mom is a very special person.

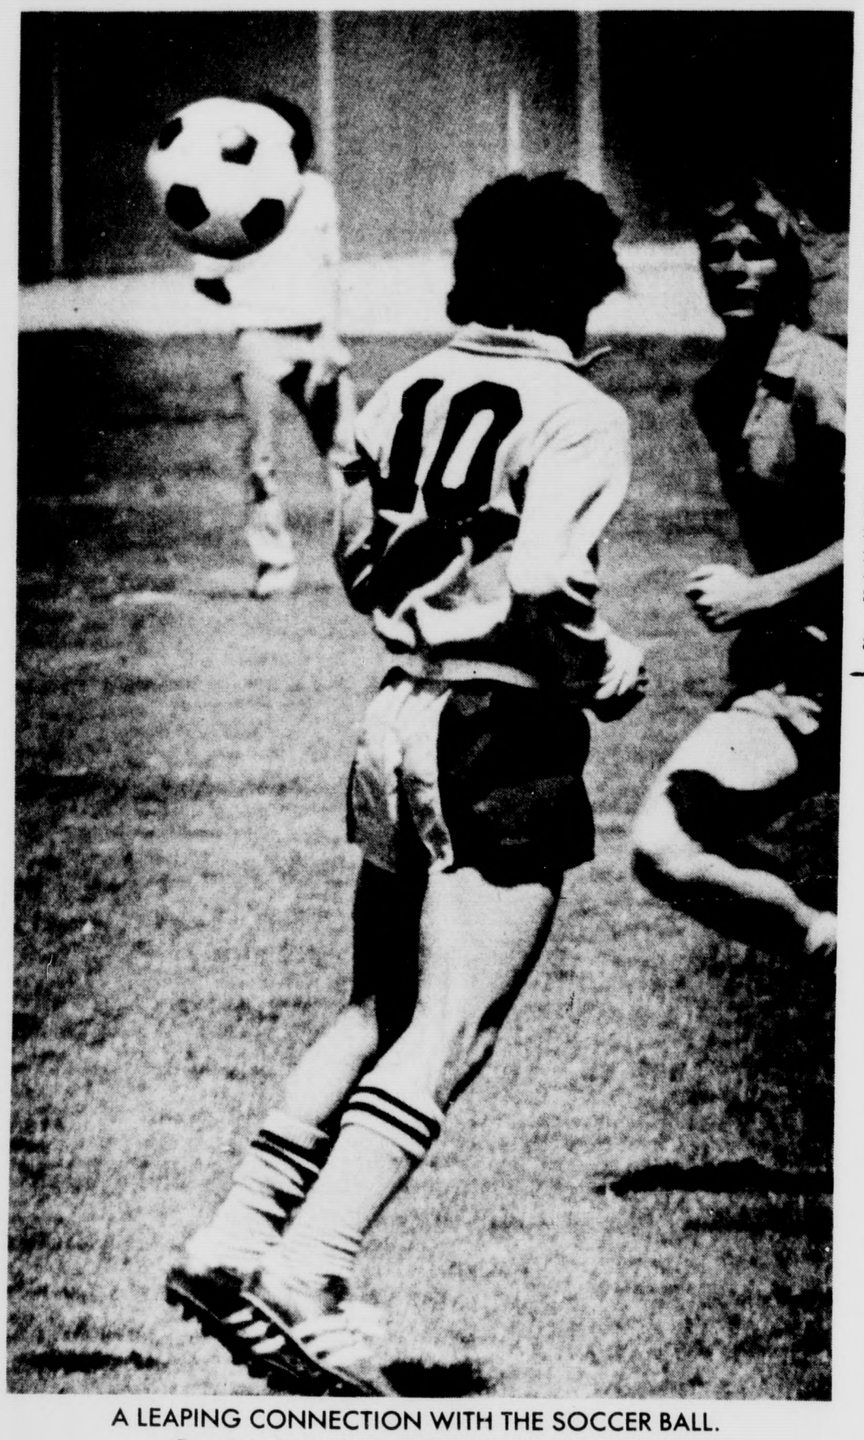
Sentinels drop Cup, 2-1



A LEAPING CONNECTION WITH THE SOCCER BALL.
Fountain Valley's Paul Torrents 'heads' ball.

After a scoreless first half visiting Fountain Valley scored two goals in the second half to take a 2-1 victory over the Livermore Sentinels in the finals of the State Junior Challenge Cup soccer match yesterday at Emma Smith School in Livermore.

The Southern California team got a big break with about five minutes gone in the second half when the Sentinels's excellent goalie Pete Howard fell and twisted his ankle in front of the home team's net as Fountain Valley's Paul Torrents banged in the first goal of the contest.

"That was probably one of the key plays of the contest," Sentinel coach Mike Thompson admitted after the contest. "Pete was having one of his better games and that definitely hurt us. However, Gary Lamb did an outstanding job filling in for Howard."

One can't fault either Howard or Lamb for the Sentinel defeat. Howard collected 19 saves before he was injured, getting 14 of those in the first half. Lamb had nine in slightly over half the second half. He made several leaping grabs of Fountain Valley shots.

The second Fountain Valley goal came with about seven minutes left in the contest. Halfback Marvin Fernandez broke to his right near the Sentinel net and drove one in from about five yards out.

Dave D'Ambra scored the only Sentinel goal on a penalty kick with about two minutes left in the match. After the Livermore goal Fountain Valley generally kept the ball near midfield, displaying some fine teamwork.

Torrents was a constant thorn in the sides of the Sentinels all match long. The shot, wiry athlete displayed great agility and quickness is passing the ball off and driving towards the goal. He has several shots on goal that would probably have gone in if not for the brillant goaltending of Howard and Lamb.

Thompson felt his team had a brief lapse early in the second half.

"Except for that early period in the second half we played pretty well," he said. "They (Fountain Valley) are one of the best three teams we've played. However, they never should have gotten that first goal."

Nevertheless the Southern California club won the right to play the Northwest champion in the National Cup competition. The winner of that battle will play a Nevada team for the right to play in the national finals in June.

Yankees' big inning tops Oakland, 8-4

OAKLAND (AP) — Roy White's tie-breaking single off Rollie Fingers drove in two runs as the New York Yankees broke a tie with four runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Oakland A's 8-4 Saturday.

Graig Nettles walked to start the ninth and moved to second on a sacrifice by Willie Randolph. Jim Mason also walked and Fingers, the A's relief ace, replaced Jim Todd. Mickey Rivers forced Mason at second but White followed with a single which scored Nettles from third and Rivers, who was running with the pitch, all the way from first.

Thurman Munson then doubled to score White and a throwing error by second baseman Phil Garner on the relay allowed Munson to continue across the plate.

The winning pitcher was Dick Tidrow, who held the A's hitless in the final 11-3 innings after the A's tied the game in the eighth inning with a run against Dock Ellis. A walk to Larry Lintz, a stolen base, and an error by catcher Munson on the throw put a runner on third and Bert Campaneris singled to tie the score.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Yankees and dropped the A's two games under .500 for the first time in exactly two years.

Rader kicked out as Giants lose

MONTREAL (AP) —Montreal Manager Karl Kuehl barely had time to say he was playing a National League baseball game under protest Saturday before the umpires agreed with him and tossed Dave Rader of the San Francisco Giants out of the Expos' 7-5 victory.

Rader had pinch hit for pitcher Randy Moffitt in the eighth inning and Giants Manager Bill Rigney informed plate umpire Lee Weyer that Charlie Williams would be the new pitcher.

But returning to the dugout, Rigney sent Rader out to catch, taking over for Marc Hill, who was warming up Williams on the chilly afternoon.

Kuehl stormed out and argued that the players on the field had to play. The umpires conferred and Weyer ordered Rader to the dugout.

"Hill took the field again and then Rader was behind the plate," Kuehl said. "Obviously the umpires didn't agree with me right away. Rigney came out of the dugout and told everybody what was happening but he's got to do that before they take their positions. The book is very clear on that."

Dale Murray's 31-3 innings of relief earned him his second save as he protected the tworun lead the Expos carried from the sixth inning on.

Larry Parrish delivered a bases-loaded triple to key a four-run Montreal outburst in the first inning.

Pepe Mangual led off with his first home run of the season before singles by Jerry White and Gary Carter and a walk to Pete Mackanin loaded the bases for Parrish, who drove a pitch from John D'Acquisto, 0-2, to the fence in right center.

D'Acquisto came back with a run-scoring single in the second inning of the nationally televised game, but the Expos made it 6-1 in the bottom of the inning. Mike Jorgensen chased D'Acquisto with an RBI double and Carter greeted reliever Dave Heaverlo with an RBI grounder.

Wicks stops Pokes in 10

Rob Wicks delivered another strong pitching performance as the Amador Valley Dons outlasted Livermore High School, 2-1, in a 10-inning East Bay Athletic League baseball game Friday afternoon in Pleasanton.

Wicks pitched the distance, giving up just six hits and a walk while striking out 11. Three of the hits and the base - on - balls came during the three extra innings.

The Dons' winning run was not without controversy.

After Cowboy reliever Jeff Benton had hit Mike Connolly with his first pitch of the tenth inning, Jeff Terry fouled out to short left field, with Livermore's Ken Watts making an outstanding sliding catch.

But Watts, attempting to double Connolly off first, threw the ball away and Mike was awarded third base, the umpires ruling that a runner is entitled to two bases on any overthrow by an outfielder. Cowboy coach Kevin Drake protested that only one base should have been allowed, lending just a touch of doubt to the outcome of the contest.

But while the protest may be considered in the meeting rooms of the EBAL, Amador went ahead decisively on the field when Dan Straface lined a single down the right field line to score Connolly.

"It was a big win for us," said Amador coach Don Bush. "Especially in view of the tight race for first." The Dons held a half-game lead over Monte Vista going into the game and led Livermore by one.

Although Wicks, who expended just 54 pitches over the first six innings, was the dominant force in the game, it was his one shaky inning that sent the game into overtime.

Dan Wood led off the Cowboys last-chance seventh by pulling a ground single through the hole between first and second. After two batters struck out, he moved to second on a passed ball and scored when Watts lined a curving single to left.

But it was one of only three times the 'Pokes had more than one runner on against Wicks, a junior righthander.

Amador scored what looked like the only run they would need to win in the second inning. With one away, catcher Mark Bevilacqua drilled a grounder up the middle that Cowboy second baseman Charlie Bockover did well to flag down.

Don Palmer then squeeze-bunted down the first base line and was safe, Bevilacqua scoring, when Livermore couldn't pick the ball up in time.

The Cowboys got a solid six and two-thirds innings from starting pitcher Jim Becker. The 'Poke righthander gave up five hits and four walks while fanning five.

Granada's Parness hurls one-hitter

Lady Luck was on Bob Parness' side Friday afternoon until two were out in the seventh inning of Granada's EBAL baseball battle with Dublin.

Possessor of a no-hitter up to that point, Parness gave up a two-strike infield hit to Dublin's Larry Castillo, a slow roller to shortstop, but the Mats soundly defeated the Gaels anyway, 6-0.

"I didn't know until the last inning," Parness said of his near no-hitter. "They (Granada's fielders) told me they didn't have any hits."

In the fifth inning, Castillo stroked a hot shot up the middle that glanced under the glove of shortstop Vance Rushing, who had to go to his left to try and make the play. Dublin's bench erupted, thinking the no-hitter had been broken up, and even first indications from the official scorekeeper justified their claim.

But the Gaels were told in the last inning that Castillo's shot was ruled an error. When Castillo redeemed himself by legging out the slow bounder to short in the seventh, the Dublin benched followed with resounding crys of, "Now it's a two-hitter."

The Mats scored three runs off losing hurler Jerry Puertas in the first inning. Leadoff - hitter Jaryl Hudson singled, and one out later Rushing smacked a homer over Granada's left-field fence.

Puertas then went wild, walking four of the next five batters he faced before finally retiring the side.

In the third, the Mats scored three unearned runs. Tim Shatswell was safe on an infield error, and Scott Trudeau's double put runners on second and third.

With two men out, ninth-batter Bill Whalen looped a single to left, scoring two runs. Whalen scored on an RBI single by Hudson, who finished the day with 3 hits in 4 at-bats.

"We've been hitting the ball since Easter Vacation," Granada coach Dennis Berger said of his Mats, who now possess a 3-6-2 league record." We got 10 hits at Monte Vista and lost.

"This is probably the first time we've put all three together: pitching, defense and hitting," he continued. "In the early - season our pitching would hit a low streak, then our hitting would die. Then in the last week and a half we've been getting good defense."

Berger was pleased with the performance of Parness. "He had good control today. Before, he would walk a lot of batters, but today he only walked two or three."

Although limiting the Gaels to just one hit, Parness struckout only four batters. Granada played excellent defense, highlighted in the fifth inning by Bill Jespersen's diving catch in left field of a shot hit by Chris Downing.

"Unless you're overpowering, you're not going to strike out 10 batters," Berger explained "When you get the ball over the plate, your defense is better. That's why Wicks (Amador's Rob) is so successful."

Granada plays Livermore and San Ramon next week, and Berger still harbors hopes of reaching the .500 mark with three games remaining on the slate. Steve Stone will face the Cowboys Tuesday, while Parness will go up against the Wolves Friday.

SR swimmers lead qualifying

10 meet records in both the varsity and frosh-soph levels fell during yesterday's EBAL swimming championships held at California High School.

No team scores were taken as the meet was to determine North Coast Section qualifiers. San Ramon did lead the way in winners, getting six firsts. Granada was second with five and Amador had four.

Dave Underwood of San Ramon had a meet record in of 24.0 in the varsity 50-yard freestyle. Teammate Davitt Cunningham joined Underwood in the charmed circle, setting a new record in the frosh - soph 200-yard freestyle with a 1:51.4 clocking. Cunningham also won the 100-yard backstroke.

Amador High got a superior effort from divers Dave Potts and Dave Dalheim who finished 1-2 in the varsity competition. The Dons' Brian Story also garnered a first, winning the varsity 100-yard breaststroke at 1:03.1, a new meet record.

MV sophomore stays unbeaten

Employing admirable speed and power, and at times — pitching — Monte Vista which has yet to lose on its Alamo diamond, dealt California another massive blow in East Bay Athletic league baseball Friday.

Final count was a resultful 7-2.

Monte Vista, which has never seemed able to mount a decisive drive, did so in this one — staking sophomore starter Brad Miller with single runs in the first and third, before tallying four more in the fifth for 6-0.

Miller, possessing a large repertiore, exploded from the mound in driving toward the hitter, and subsequently prevailed for the fourth time in as many tries. Brad is 4-0 in EBAL.

Mustang skipper George Cockerton said afterward, "It's good when everyone gets to play. However, it's not going to be easy to win the rest of our games. We have three left and may have to play a remake with Cal."

Miller, meanwhile, who labored five innings before turning over the ball to Greg Goodman and Darrell Jardine, gave up just four hits while striking out seven. Brad threw only 75 pitches — of which 31 were strikes.

The Mustangs, a club that thrives on percentage hittings and has extraordinary speed on the bases besides a fine defensive unit, reached Bob Cary in the very first stanza.

Kevin Jones (two for four), on a one-two offering, plated Greg Bisbee from second base with a shot up the middle. Bisbee reached via a single.

In the third, Mark Silva drove in Mike Mattson by belting a Cary fastball down the left field line for two bases.

To compound the two aforementioned disasters, Monte Vista rid themselves of Cary in the fifth.

Cary, now 2-2, got Walt Finn to strike out to open the inning, and faced just three more batsmen.

Bisbee followed drawing a free pass, before stealing second base and going to third on Silva's left field base hit. That set the stage for Jones, who singled in Bisbee and caused Cary's abrupt departure in favor of another righthander, Larry Walters.

After Walters sent to a 1-0 count on Barry Long, on the ensuing pitch Long cudgeled a towering double off the center field screen. Silva scored from second base standing up.

Jones and Long later scored when Walters wild pitched in the former, and Chris Hadsell lofted to moderately shallow center — plating the latter. On the play, Long overslid the plate and hurriedly touched safely when Cal catcher Roger Hurlow dropped the ball.

Bowles takes third

FRESNO — Mike Bowles of San Ramon High School fell short of his personal best but still managed to place a respectable third to an 'institution' in the discus Friday night at the Fresno Relays.

Bowles threw the platter 167-6, far under his personal best of 175-7. However, he lost to two athletes from Hoover of Fresno, Scott Endler and Matt McNaughton.

Hoover has annually had some of the best discus throwers in the state. Endler threw 185-4 for the first place medal and McNaughton, heaved the discus 179-8 for second.

Endler's toss broke the old Relays record of 184-2 set in 1973 by Dave Hickland of Leland of San Jose.

The hot weather (81 degrees at 6:30) might have affected some of the athletes at the Relays.

One of them was Dublin two-miler Dan Harvey, who finished 12th in the eight - lapper with a 9:52.6 clocking.

"It was just too hot out there," the slender Gael senior admitted. "It was tough running under those conditions."

Harvey's teammates also ran into some tough competition.

The 440-yard relay team ran a seasonal best of 43.31 according to the electronic timers and won its heat. However, Dublin went unplaced in the final standings as Mt. Pleasant won with a 41.94 clocking, edging arch-rival Piedmont Hills which recorded a 41.98 time.

Gael hurdler Chuck Gangnuss finished fourth in his heat but failed to advance to the finals. However, Scott Campbell of Granada made the finals but went unplaced with a 14.92 clocking.

Campbell ran a strong anchor leg on the Matador mile-relay team as he took it from fourth to second in its heat. The Matadors failed to place overall but recorded a seasonal best of 3:25.6.

Granada's girls 440-yard relay squad of Karen Roberts, Debbie Santa Maria, Kathy Honour and Diana Stohr raced to a fourth place finish in 49.87. Edison of Fresno won the event in a blazing 48.50.

Madera won the team competition with 32 points, one ahead of Mt. Pleasant with 31. Mt. Pleasant was ahead going into the last event, the mile relay, but finished fourth in 3:20.2 as Madera won the event in 3:18.2.

Matadors defeat Mustangs

Granada handed Monte Vista a 5-2 defeat Friday as the Mats boosted their record to 7-3 in EBAL girls tennis action.

It was a hard - fought match and "well-played," according to the coaches.

Carolyn Downing fell to Granada's Dana Sorem in a squeaker, 7-5,7-5, but the most exciting match of the day was the Terry Coelho - Amy Hopper battle which went into a tie - breaker. Coelho pulled out from a 4-4 deadlock to win it for the Mats.

Chris Brandes of Monte Vista outplayed Sylvia Knell, 6-4, 6-4, and Jenny Mumma of Granada downed Lori Hyman in a tough one, 7-5, 6-3.

Deaton takes first

Greg Deaton, an 18-year old from Granada Bowl, captured first place at the All-American Youth Bowling Championships last weekend in Stockton.

Deaton won the State Handicap Graduate Division, winning five of six head-on matches Sunday.

Girls' softball

Dons cinch tie

Amador's championship - bound girls softball team played its usual and (yawn) exciting softball and clinched at least a tie for the league crown as the talented Dons downed second-place Dublin, 21-3, in EBAL action Friday.

The Amador club, now 7-0 in league play and 10-0 overall, unleashed a thirteen - run barrage in the sixth inning en route to the triumph. Second baseman Debbie Oxsen proved to be one of the keys to the powerful Amador machine as the talented junior batted in four runners and pounded out three doubles for a fine day at the plate. In the defense department, Oxsen, who is recovering from a sprained shoulder, cracked ribs and the like, nailed three Gael batters with dead-eye throws to first base, while winding up the game with a spectacular diving catch.

"Debbie played a great game," commented Don coach Vivian Straight, "just like she always does. Deanna (Marengo) also helped us out with her steady pitching job."

Marengo hurled six strike-outs and also managed to steal home early. Jamie Watson brought in four runs, while Jean Borton batted in three to pace the winners. Jayne Kuhns, Kris Brittain, Carolyn Fleischer, Sheryl Withoft and Cindy Aafedt also played well for the Amador squad.

Urban, rural residential or 'One Valley City?'

Is it true that "the only healthy growth is city growth?" Should municipal government prevail not only for all land - use within its borders, but even to include a "veto power" over any and all development beyond those city lines?

That argument has gained considerable play in City of Livermore's standoff with "Geldertown." It is a philosophy that is being voiced — one way or another — by candidates for such office as county board of supervisors or the Zone 7 Water District.

Even from such divergent political powerhouses as Supervisor John Murphy, challenger Valerie Raymond and environmental activist Don Miller, there is apparent agreement that "best kind of growth is municipal ... the ultimate answer is bigger cities, and nothing else."

Since it is also the somewhat official view of Local Agency Formation Commissions in both Alameda and Contra Costa counties, those who still yearn for "the quiet house out in the country" might wonder where all this leaves them.

Particularly so in this suburban spread, where a sizeable percentage of our people have already laid claim to "non - city living" ... in San Ramon and Sunol, along Mines Road, or throughout Happy Valley. Even Dublin, which today is urbanized although still non - municipal, wooed its first rush of modern - day settlers with those "City Close, Country Quiet" ads which Volk and McClain splashed across the Bay Area's billboards.

Whatever might be the hindsight view of rural - versus - city living, it is still a fact that a great many of our people came to this basin specifically because "it is so rural in character." We cannot be so naive as to insist that Livermore and Pleasanton retain their 1940's country character even while providing a home for each one of you transplanted urbanites.

But we can wonder at the blend of city and village, ranch and rural residential that is peculiar to much of these 600 square miles. We submit that, if they were ever asked to vote on it, the vast majority of this basin's residents would want to sustain that mix much as it now exists ... even with all its faults, its scattered septic tanks, its occasional residential pockets, and its old - town centers that must include some modern - day services.

If what we already have is indeed what most people want to preserve, and even extend, then we had best start wondering about those champions among us who would compel every residential, commercial and recreational use to connect to a sewer line; who would give to municipal government the absolute control over all land use; and who would therefore deny for all time any extension or replacement of the kinds of patch - work private enclaves which are spread across this hinterland.

A great change has come over the valleys of Livermore, Amador and San Ramon over the last 30 years; but that is nothing compared to the change that is coming, if we are to be bound into tight municipal pockets, denied even the right to make a mistake now and then, along some backwoods trail.

Heritage lives

There is a "battle for the preservation of Old Pleasanton" underway on the city's east side, and it extends far beyond that one debate over the best location for the United Presbyterian Church.

The emotions evolving from both sides of the struggle over that century - old edifice are, we are convinced, true love. It is nice to know that one building, which has already served this community for 100 - plus years, can still engender that kind of passion, whether we love her for the faith inside, or the boards outside.

But that is not the whole story of "Old Town's Revival." Modest little residences along First Street that might long ago have been given up to the "commercial creap," have blossomed forth in new spring colors, displaying the pride of ownership usually associated with the $70,000 tract job.

East from First Street, there is movement underway that seems bent upon recapturing every home, every board, every tree, and projecting those values into a new century of use.

Those of us who have long made our home in "Old Town" do not have to be told of its charms. But it is nice to know that newer generations can find a home there too, and bring with them new life for a lovely part of Pleasanton that can never be duplicated.

More than a church

Editor, The Times:

An open letter to The Times, and to Mrs. Bonnie Kirchbaum, who seemingly spearheads those banded together to prevent the tentative move of the Presbyterian Community Church:

I am seventeen years old ... I have never paid property taxes, income taxes, voted in a city, state or national election, been married, raised a family or tried to fight the world. What do I, at seventeen, know about living or life? I'll tell you.

I know of prejudice, naivety, superficiality, closed minds and a lack of true, real, concrete community awareness. Between the articles in your paper and Mrs. Kirchbaum's widely vocalized stand on the issue, I've learned a lot, being of an "impressionable age."

I also know, with much more intensity, of the love, togetherness, acceptance and beautiful spirituality of belonging to my church family. And, dear God, how I wish that all of you who are on the outside looking in could just experience it! I can guarantee you incredible insight and understanding. This "issue" would cease to exist.

I realized this must sound incredible, what with the decay of the family unit, the lack of love and sense of right and wrong in the world; but when there is an abundance of these things in one place, they tend to rub off on you. Try to imagine, Mrs. Kirchbaum, the love and affection that you have for your husband and children, and then multiply it by 800. You may get a feeling of what it's like to belong to the Presbyterian Community Church. ...

Mrs. Kirchbaum is vehemently opposed to the move of our building and she has made that obvious. Yet, I am sure that she and her group of advocates have never attended a worship service with us. When will you open your eyes, friends, and most importantly, your hearts, and see?

Our Church Is Not A Building. Our church is the people in it, the love they have for each other, and most important, for God.

What is that old saying? "A house is not a home unless there's someone there ..." Or is it just another cliche?

When will you see that because of our love for the building itself, we have chosen to preserve it and expand it, not tear it down and build a more modern building elsewhere, as the Catholic church did a few years ago. I'm not knocking the decision to build a new St. Augustine's. Their church members obvious felt it was the best decision and realized that they could be just a close community in a new building.

Fine. We feel we'll be just a close a community in our old church when it's up on the hill. I also feel that community awareness should be just that — awareness of the feelings of all those involved. For if there were a community hearing on the issue, as suggested by the editor of the Independent, including all valley residents, those against the move would become more aware of the feelings of those For the move. I welcome the idea of a public hearing ...

... those who condemn this country's youth should stop and reflect on the examples set for us by adults. Closed minds are what I see right now. I just hope and pray that I'll never grow up like that. I also extend to you who are against the move of our building, an invitation to come and see what our church is all about. We all need a little more love in our lives.

Heritage 'movers'

One of the most dedicated and hard - working groups in the valley is the Pleasanton Bicentennial Festival Committee.

Chaired by Charlotte Severin, the group's principal projects at present are the Heritage Festival May 15 and 16 at Amador Valley Community Park and the Bicentennial Fair Parade on Sunday, June 27.

The committee represents an excellent cross-section of the "movers" and "doers" in the Pleasanton area. Almost all are women who know how to get things done.

And if you have any doubts, I would suggest you come to the Heritage Festival next Saturday and Sunday.

The festival will have something for everyone. Whether you like to view arts and crafts, demonstrations of how to churn butter, vintage cars, stage performances of cultural groups or simply browse and eat, the festival is for young and old.

It's scheduled from 10 to 6 next Saturday and Sunday. The committee urges that you come early, come in a heritage - style costume and, preferably, come by bicycle or on foot — "just like the good ol' days." There'll be plenty of room for parking around the park site, though.

This festival would never have been possible if it weren't for Charlotte, Billie Schmer, Phyllis Wentworth, Bev Hamlin, Ann Carroll (and a very cooperative City of Pleasanton staff), Betty Nostrand, Barbara Van Slyke, Barbara Joan Smith, Sandy Sinclair, Marty Wedekamper, Suzanne Rhudy and Pat Maines. I've unintentionally missed a few, including Jim Allen and myself. But, Jim and I sort of stand back and await the instructions and advice of this dynamic group of young women.

Besides the craftsmen and artisans who will display their products, residents of the Bay Area will have for sale many kinds of jewelry, tole, rocks, macrame, balloons, T-shirts, painted levis, pottery, granny bonnets, leather goods, handmade kitchen wood utensils, dry flower arrangements and terrariums with sand sculpture.

The Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce will be selling special Bicentennial straw hats and the Valley Craft Guild of Dublin will have a block of 10 booths with various local crafts and arts.

There'll be a petting zoo, children's art show, soap making and meat cutting, cultural groups performing and free prizes to winners of the heritage costume judging (tickets to Great America Amusement Park).

Some six weeks from now comes the Bicentennial Fair Parade, the special planning "oyster" of Leeann McFadden and Nancy D'Arcy. Approximately 60 entries have been accepted to date and a total of 250 are being sought. Many more individual or group entries in Bicentennial dress are being sought. There'll be prizes for this category, too. Deadline for entries is June 12.

But on this day, I think it most appropriate to salute the women of the Bicentennial Festival Committee.

They are a most lovely and dedicated assemblage.

round the town

To begin with, I would like to state that I believe in motherhood.

Parenthood, even. I realize that some of you might have thought otherwise, given my lament from time to time on the woes of trying to reason with one or more of "that other generation."

I am, in truth, a phony. Even my oft - quoted dictum — "Every child upon reaching the age of 14 should be drowned, for the good of all concerned" — is not what you'd call a solid belief. I must confess that I have never drowned so much as a cat. Even dumping a live spider into the toilet gives me the shakes.

But it is children, not spiders, that gain our attention this day. For it is "Mother's Day," and what can be more vital? (I do not mean to imply that spiders cannot be mothers. I guess some of them must be. But I would just as soon leave that discussion to Spider Parents.)

I, of course, had a mother. Poetic, lovable and loving; a delicate flower dropped upon the harsh prairie soil, and there to somehow bloom, for some 60 of her 84 years. If I were asked to apply one single word to my mother, I would have to say — "Survival!"

Which proves that nothing much has changed since the challenge of the Great Depressions, One thru Three. Once it was the battle of the washboard, simple but demanding; today it is a struggle with things automatic and electronic and hydroelectric, just to accomplish the same goal.

I do not believe that life is any easier for the Mothers of today. Different, yes. But not easier. The automation that came to washing and cooking was brought also to the raising of offspring. They are automatically impossible, and that is that.

The other day we received a letter from that one of ours who still lays claim to the college life. Letters from your child always brighten the day, right? Those who answered "Yes" get a P - minus.

"Well, it finally happened!"

How's that for the opening line of a letter from your college - age prodigal! What has finally happened?? The mind runs through all the things that "finally happen" to all college coeds ... marriage, pregnancy, joining the Kennedy Campaign team.

It is only with the greatest strength that a parent reads on to the second line of such a letter. To learn, of course, that "the happening" deals with nothing less important than the "Pioneer Week Rodeo." You are supposed to be impressed.

You are even more impressed with the written instructions as to route, time and itinerary for the Pioneer Week Parental Visit. It is a command performance.

"Why," I ask the child's mother, "are we driving 200 miles to spend a night in Holiday Inn, during the busiest weekend in Chico's history, when her own schedule does not allow for the briefest of family gatherings, not to mention a serious discussion of grades and finances?"

"We are going," the mother of the child advises, "to see the parade."

Now if there is one thing this Valley does not lack it is parades. I recall counting seven of them upcoming just during the next two months. No better, no worse than all other parades. But at least they do not require a 200 - mile drive just to witness one of the blessed things.

"The parade is a big part of Pioneer Week and the kid expects us to be there." The mother has spoken. She made much the same speech when one of her darlings was in Davis, another in Corvallis. Still another in far - off Queensland. When the chick chirps, the mother hen responds. That is one of the rules of motherhood.

Personally, I would have made a terrible Mom. Even the idea of delivery scares hell out of me. But beyond that, the day - to - day drama of mother - and - child is a struggle that is well beyond my capacity.

Editor, publisher, ulcerated employer. Frustrated breadwinner. Hacker of golf balls. The Mr. Fixit who can (and I am being terribly honest) fix nothing at all. Ah yes, the role of the male parent is not an easy one.

But nothing compared to that of the female parent. She must, at all times, be terribly stern, but terribly loving. She is expected to know all, but must appear to know nothing. She is admonished for "those other Moms who are so much more hep," but then is tearfully advised that "I really love you because you are so darned old - fashioned."

Mothers are, when you get right down it, the most durable of all God's miracles. I am constantly amazed how they find time to raise those kids and raise us husbands too.

ANGRY TAXPAYER

Housing rap

By William Baker

The Supreme Court recently affirmed that federal judges, in trying to break up black inner-city ghettos, can order public housing to be located in white suburban neighborhoods.

This invasion of the suburbs with low-income housing projects, financed mainly by the income tax on the same middle class suburbanites, cannot be court-forced unless there's evidence of racial discrimination that violates the Constitution.

One could make a good case against expanding public housing projects anywhere because of the way some tenants abuse the property and surrounding areas. The housing provided by the taxpayers in Oakland, San Francisco and elsewhere, often looks like a war scene complete with plywood windows and gardens that resemble the "before" picture for a weed killer advertisement.

The police problems dealing mainly with violence and domestic quarrels would shock most suburbanites. It should by now be clear to most that when an owner is not directly involved in the maintenance of residential property it deteriorates rapidly. In short, ownership provides the incentive to work hard — a major requirement for home maintenance and neighborhood improvement.

While the value of providing public housing in low income areas to "improve the living conditions" of the area's residents can be debated, the moving of public housing to the suburbs where there is no existing demand cannot be defended.

This expansion program would set off a wave of further development of sub-suburbs farther into the hinterlands to escape the deterioration of the suburbs.

The court approaches this public housing question on the merits of encouraging racial desegregation, but regardless of race, all suburban residents have fled the anachronistic core cities to avoid the congestion and crime found there. The expansion of public housing into the suburbs at great expense has the earmark of an egalitarian ghetto-building conspiracy. Why should the urban areas have all of the budget-busting fun trying to maintain and police low income housing when they can be exported to neighboring residential suburbs?

Sound like an isolated dream of a warped social engineer?

On Aug. 21, 1975, the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) approved a regional allocation system for housing. Under this allocation plan economic and racial factors were assigned to each community to be used when ABAG exercises its General Review authority over new building projects involving federal money.

But like most collective mandates, the allocation of housing by income levels or race is inefficient and unjust. Take for instance ABAG's definition of "poorly housed" — a family which spends more than 25 per cent of its income on housing. The average home sold on multiple listing in Central Contra Costa County in 1975 averaged $59,000, which means that unless the average buyer makes $25,948 a month he is poorly housed?

The breakdown by economic and race factors became so tangled or perhaps ludicrous that even ABAG scrubbed them from their report, but the intentions of these central planners to dictate housing based on income or race were exposed and remain simmering on the back-burner.

The economic effect of mandating lower valued residences in middle income areas is obvious. What is not so clear is how this intrusion will affect our improving racial climate.

Will lower income citizens regardless of race, be a big hit in Walnut Creek, Concord, Moraga or Danville? While some might accuse opponents of this court edict of laboring with racist intent, the recent violence in liberal Boston points out that the use of government force is counter-productive to insuring harmonious racial relations.

I hope that government — especially the courts — will recognize that they cannot upset economic balance in the suburbs without generating further suburban sprawl and disunity among the residents. With court calendars jammed, surely the justices can find more productive work than trying to block low-cost housing in urban areas by legislating a transplant to suburbia.

William P. Baker is executive vice president of the Contra Costa Taxpayers Association.

Rematch! rematch!! The Times' trivia team demands a second contest with the pretenders to the "world" trivia championship, The Cheese Factory.

And while the cry goes forth for a rematch, the Pleasanton Lions would like it known they soundly thrashed the Pleasanton Rotary last week for the "club championship." Besides, Ben Fernandez's membership in Lions is on the line! (Trivia ace Fernandez wrote the questions and served as moderator for the match).

All four teams in the doubleheader held at Sunol Country Club would also like it known they appreciate the 60 or 70 who stayed around until the late evening hours. The proceeds went to a very worthy cause, the Bicentennial Bandstand being constructed in the park along First Street in Pleasanton.

For Sunday, May 9, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your ambitions are easily aroused today, particularly if there is something material at stake. Pursue all opportunities vigorously.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can manage others in a way today that won't offend them. They'll recognize and appreciate that it's for their own good.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may be in for a pleasant surprise today regarding the outcome of a situation you've been a bit dubious about. Hang in there.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If there is someone you'd like to see today, but this person can't come to you, arrange to visit him. Should be fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone who is indebted to you for a favor may have to be reminded of his old obligation, but he'll come through if you press a little.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something of importance involving you and a friend may have to be discussed today. The issue can be resolved if you're both frank.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There's a strong possibility today that you could profit from a situation someone else has put together. Look for a hidden opportunity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An old friend may need some moral support today. Speak up on his behalf, so all will know exactly where you stand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you're explicit about your goals today you'll very likely get whatever you go after. Determination pays off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be able to sway others today if you're firm without being severe. Make your points in a friendly manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may see someone you're fond of being taken advantage of today. If so, step in and straighten the situation out as quickly as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your companions may have suggestions for today's activities that vary with your plans. Everything will turn out fun if the majority rules.

Your Birthday

Catholic Voice

In a strongly worded statement on "an area of increasingly grave concern" Bishop Floyd Begin of the Catholic diocese of Oakland, condemns the "rapid growth of the pornographic and near - pornographic in the society around us" and urges everyone "to encourage reverence for humanity and sexuality at all times."

In order to emphasize the seriousness of this problem, the Bishop urged all pastors to distribute a Prayer for Decency and all parishioners recited it together at Masses on May 2. They were also asked to include it in all of their Masses during the month of May.

The Bishop's "Open Letter of Concern" was published in several dailies, in addition to the diocesan paper, The Catholic Voice, on Monday, May 3. In it he points out that the "constant barrage of the immodest and indecent" can make people accept this as a way of life, "an inevitable consequence of modern society."

The Bishop says, "sensitivities have been dulled and moral objections silenced. He points out that the prime motivation of the pornographic seems to be financial profit, "but its ultimate result is the destruction of the moral fiber and virtue of our people."

Bishop Begin calls on concerned people, particularly his fellow Catholics, to refrain from patronizing those publications, theaters and places of business which encourage the pornographic ... to affirm what is positive in the media and oppose publicly what is not.

All's clear in Pittsburgh

By HORACE SUTTON

PITTSBURGH — Here on the banks of the Allegheny, the Mellons speak only to the Carnegies and the Carnegies speak only to the United Steel workers.

That leaves only the Heinzs and they speak to everybody, especially since Congressman John Heinz is running for the U.S. Senate.

Things have changed here in western Pennsylvania. You no longer have to put your headlights on at noon or change your shirt every other hour.

Pittsburgh has grown out of all that. New methods of air purification and industrial control have cleansed the atmosphere. The Iron City still produces iron men and brews Iron City beer, but Pittsburgh has become the Renaissance City.

Soaring skyscapers rise out of its Golden Triangle, the point of land where the Monongahela and the Allegheny come together to form the Ohio River or La Belle Riviere, as the French used to call it.

The names of the corporations are familiar — Alcoa, which has built its tower out of aluminum, and U.S. Steel, which constructed a 64-story monument out of steel that will eventually weather to a blue-black tone.

Only Heinz is missing among the skyscrapers that occupy the one-half square mile triangle, probably because you can't build a building out of pickles.

The towers occupy turf once besmirched with shanties and tumbledown warehouses After World War II, a consortium led by the Mellons dispatched the slum and brought forth an urban renaissance.

Nowadays the Mellon Bank, the 1,700-room William Penn Hotel and the aluminum Alcoa Building surround the patch of greenery that is Mellon Square, a handsome park that covers a 900-car underground garage.

Mellon Bank, which dabbles world-wide, occupies not only its august building, but an adjoining one built by U.S. Steel which outgrew it in 15 years.

The emergence of the great buildings in the Golden Triangle has created a magnificent view from the heights of Mount Washington across the river. Although you can get up there by car, it is more in character to take the Duquesne Incline, which was built by Germans in 1877 and survives as a working relic in the fashion of San Francisco's cable cars.

there is a better way to sell your home!

Since a home is the largest single investment most people will ever make in a lifetime, the most important person outside of your family is your Realtor. When selling or choosing a new home, you should seek professional expertise and expect nothing less than ethical, responsible advice and service, just as you would the counsel of an attorney for legal matters or a physician for medical assistance.
